

Quick Facts

- Features more than 2,000 of the world's most useful and reliable blogs in a single, fully-searchable collection
- Staff-written blogs from newspapers provide an important extension of each paper's coverage of issues and events
- Offers deeper perspectives from columnists and writers than can be found in news articles alone
- Includes locally written blogs by newspaper journalists and other credible local and national writers
- Explores the day's hottest topics in the arts, business, family, health, politics, science, special interests and more
- Includes locally written blogs that focus on community issues and events
- Enhances research by adding valuable perspectives and commentary to traditional news coverage

A wide-ranging collection of quality blogs for all researchers

Blogs are becoming increasingly valuable as sources of information, news, opinions and commentary. But with millions of blogs available on countless topics, searching the web for those that are relevant and respected can be time-consuming and unrewarding. With Access Blogs, however, more than 2,000 of the world's most useful and reliable blogs—including those written by newspaper reporters, editors and other journalists—are now easily accessible within a single, fully searchable collection.

Diverse content and respected sources

Access Blogs features content from top journalists, well-known opinion-makers and other experts on a vast range of subjects. These carefully selected blogs provide a major extension of each paper's coverage of issues and events, bringing deeper perspectives from columnists and writers than can be found in news articles alone. Other blogs in this collection explore the day's most important topics in arts and entertainment, business, family, health, politics, science, special interests and much more. Access Blogs also features locally written blogs that focus on community issues and events.

Easy access from home or library to perspectives

With this growing body of content, students and faculty can now conduct advanced searches on information that has been previously out of reach for many researchers. From either home or the library, researchers can easily search, browse, print, save and email the valuable local, regional and national content found in these blogs. And with NewsBank's powerful search capabilities and intuitive interface, patrons can track topics over time, pinpoint relevant content and browse specific blogs.

Expanded research opportunities

In addition to influencing public opinion, blogs augment other news and information sources with commentary and unique, often entertaining perspectives. Access Blogs adds important context to NewsBank's collections of current and retrospective news information and can be cross-searched with other NewsBank products, including America's News, Access Newswires, Access Transcripts, Access Business News and Access World News.

For more information, contact a NewsBank representative by calling 800.762.8182 or emailing sales@newsbank.com.