

Quick Facts

- Features 500 19th-century historical American newspapers and more than 500,000 issues
- Newspapers from all 50 states and the District of Columbia
- Titles selected to provide extensive coverage and political, geographic and chronological balance
- Covers issues and events from the Early National Period to the Gilded Age
- Features wide-ranging weeklies, big-city dailies and historically significant newspapers from Maine to California
- Digitized from the holdings of the American Antiquarian Society and more than 90 other institutions
- Easily view, magnify, print and save digital images of pages or articles
- A part of the acclaimed Archive of Americana

The fundamental online collection of 19th-century American newspapers

Offering titles from all 50 states, Early American Newspapers, 1801-1900 features 500 digitized historical newspapers selected to provide extensive coverage and political, geographic and chronological balance. This essential resource chronicles dramatic growth and change on both a local and national level, and provides detailed accounts of American history from the Early National Period to the Civil War to the Gilded Age. With fascinating insight into the people, issues and events that defined 19th-century America, this collection offers new perspectives on westward expansion, industrialization, presidential elections, reform movements, Reconstruction and much more.

Extensive coverage and authoritative sources

Featuring more than 500,000 issues, Early American Newspapers, 1801-1900 includes wide-ranging weeklies, big-city dailies and historically significant newspapers from Maine to California. Key titles include the New York Herald, New York Tribune, Philadelphia Inquirer, Baltimore Sun, South Carolina City Gazette, Dallas Morning News, Kansas City Star, San Jose Mercury News and hundreds of others. They were digitized from the acclaimed newspaper collections of the American Antiquarian Society, the Library of Congress and more than 90 other institutions. Additionally, Early American Newspapers, 1801-1900 is founded upon authoritative bibliographies to enable proper identification of titles.

Powerful search capabilities

With eyewitness reporting, editorials, legislative information, letters, poetry, advertisements, death notices and more, Early American Newspapers, 1801-1900 illuminates major events in American history and offers an unprecedented glimpse into 19th-century culture and daily life. Researchers can easily view, magnify, print and save digital images of both articles and pages. Advanced search capabilities allow users to search by date, place of publication or article type, or to browse individual titles.

From the renowned Archive of Americana

Early American Newspapers, 1801-1900 is a part of the Archive of Americana, created by NewsBank's Readex division. For more than 60 years, Readex has published many of the most widely used collections of primary source materials for researching American history, literature and culture. Early American Newspapers, 1801-1900 can be cross-searched with the books, pamphlets, broadsides and government documents in the Archive of Americana for even further scope.

For more information or to arrange a product trial, contact Readex at 800.762.8182 or sales@readex.com.